THE LORD MAYOR'S MANIFESTO

Lord Mayor Alvear need not have issued his manifesto refuting the charges made by the hostile members of the Municipal Board, since one and all knew that they were groundless and inspired by dislike and envy. Every man in town knows that the efforts of the Lord Mayor are all directed towards the improvement of affairs in the city, and that his signature to a document is sufficient guarantee of its "bona fide" nature, stripped of all jobbery and tricks.

The members of the Municipal Board are perhaps the only persons who have had the patience and courage to read the dry contents of this municipal document; the style of the manifesto is a masterpiece of terse literature—it is the powerful reflection of the Lord Mayor's character. All the charges are specified—a laconic, dogmatic and dry refutation is appended to each, and winds up without any further considerations. It is certainly not a polite document, but it is to the point and places the Municipal Board in a very false position.

Let us hope that the manifesto will be the drop-scene of a domestic squabble which is tiring the public. The novelty of the affair has worked off, and the conclusions drawn by the citizens are nearly unanimous against the Board. Far better to rescind the Municipal Law completely and name the old Government committees, than continue in the present discreditable groove of petty animosities and daily interruption of municipal business. All acknowledge that the Municipality has never been in such a humiliating plight as at present, and that, however excellent the Municipal law may appear in theory, it gives most unsatisfactory results in practice.

The brains of the country framed the Municipal law, but nobody, indeed, anticipated that the public would show a cold shoulder to the law by refusing to vote or take any direct or indirect part in the elections. Popular suffrage under such circumstances is a dream at best. If the respectable portion of the community refuse to vote, little good can be expected from a law that opens the doors of office to a limited number of electors who seize the favourable opportunity of returning men of no social standing and mere instruments in the hands of their electors. The Municipal law must necessarily continue to give these bad results so long as the apathy of the respectable public does not disappear.

A man of less energy and enjoying less popularity than Lord Mayor Alvear would have succumbed, and millions of dollars would have been spent in works of little importance and no immediate necessity. If there is any money left in the Municipal treasury it is due to the curb exercised on the extravagant propensities of the Board. When the old Government committee left the Municipality there were eight millions in the treasury; to-day the balance is reduced to an infinitesimal espression, and unless municipal affairs are conducted with the greatest economy and prudence, the old discreditable succession of deficits will follow in the wake of the present lavish expenditure. The Lord Mayor in his manifesto shews in a terse manner that he has done everything morally possible to stem the current and to put a stop to the extravagance of the Board. Many members of the Board intend sending in their resignation, and the sooner dissolution sets in the better.

NATIONAL INTEMPERANCE.

In connection with this all-important subject which is attracting at present such great attention in England, we give the following, which is the concluding portion of Mr. Hoyle's letter to the Times on the Drink Bill of Great Britain and Ireland for 1883. If the British public was as the temperate as R. Plate public, what a wonderous change would there not be in the affairs of our native country. There is a movement now to introduce 'yerba' and 'mate' drinking into Europe; let us all hope that it will succeed. 'Mate' drinking, if the people at home but took to it, would revolutionize everything; crime would decline and industry progress, but we fear that it is all but a dream at best. Many of our countrymen out here even ridicule 'mate' drinking, yet under the sun there is not a more innocent or harmless drink.

Mr. Hoyle says:—

"The question of the safety of our seamen is also bound up with the drink question. In a letter to the Times some few years ago the Superintendent of Missions to Seamen in London remarked:—"I believe drunkenness to cause more disasters at sea than unseaworthy ships, and it is a reflection upon sailors and owners that our seaports should be filled with publichouses and dens of vice." Sailors too frequently get upon the spree, and when the time comes for joining their ship are not to be found; and so the vessels start shorthanded, unequal to coping with storms if they arise. Or, as often occurs, the men go aboard intoxicated and unfit for duty, and if a storm arises disaster is the result.

The average yearly loss of life at sea, including both seamen and passengers, during the five years ending 1881 is given in the Statistical Abstract as 1,992, and the Government are greatly to be commended for seeking to adopt measures to prevent the loss of life. Much of the loss of life, as we have seen, is due to intemperance, and therefore any remedy affecting our seamen which would not deal with this cause would be shortcoming.

But are not the lives of citizens on shore of as much value as those at sea? It is a very moderate estimate which gives the yearly loss of life through drinking as 80,000, and of those killed by intemperance many are cut off after years of the most terrible suffering to themselves, their families, and often to their friends; and it is not an improper question to ask, when so much concern is felt—and very properly felt—at the loss of 1,992 lives at sea, what ought to be the measure of the concern excited by the death of 80,000 persons through the temptations of intemperance.

But when, besides this loss of life resulting from drinking, we take account of the crime, poverty, lunacy, the damage to our trade, the injury to the nation's morals, the block it gives to political, social, and moral progress; when we remember, too, the immeasurable extent of the miseries it produces and note what a large proportion of the nation's efforts are spent in neutralizing the evils flowing therefrom, it is marvellous that the Government does not take earnest measures at once to remove the cause of all these evils and that the nation does not, as one man, rise and demand that this be done.

In the paragraph of his work on Political Economy, Mr. Mill, referring to the functions of Government, observes:—"Even in the best state which society has yet reached, it is lamentable to think how great a proportion of all efforts and talents in the world are spent in neutralizing one another. It is the proper end of Government to reduce this wretched waste to the smallest possible amount by taking such measures as shall cause the energies now spent by mankind in injuring one another, or in protecting themselves against injury, to be turned to the legitimate employment of the human faculties, that of compelling the products of nature to be more and more subservient to physical and moral good."

In the present condition of things, fully one-half, if not more, of the social and moral forces of the nation are wasted in efforts to counteract and neutralize the evils of the liquor traffic. If the nation was governed upon the principles described by Mr. Mill, this could not be, inasmuch as the cause producing the evils would not be allowed to exist. In such a condition of things there would be no "bitter cry of outcast London;" no 10,000 families resident in any district of the metropolis, or anywhere else in the country, living, or perhaps we ought to say huddling, in single rooms; no Arab children roaming about our streets waiting to be packed off to reformatories; no unemployed poor, for there would be work for all; and crime, pauperism, vagrancy, and most of the other social evils and miseries which curse our land, and which are a scandal to our Christianity and a disgrace to our civilization, would disappear.

Yours very sincerely,

William Hoyle.

Claromont, Bury.

The Times in a very able article commenting on Mr. Hoyle's letter says:

"Mr. Hoyle traces a gradual rise of expenditure upon drink from 1860 to 1878, and he also finds a coincident increase of crime. But since 1878 the drink bill has fallen nearly twenty-two millions, and Mr. Hoyle makes no mention of any corresponding improvement in morals. His comparisons are all between 1860 and 1882. They are not necessarily invalidated on that account, but it would surely have strengthened his case had he been able to show that 1876 was marked by a greater amount of crime than a year in which the consumption of liquors had fallen off by one-seventh. His table shows that cases of drunkenness had more than doubled in 1882 as compared with 1860, while assaults show only a trifling increase. Begging cases had been nearly trebled, while offences under the Vagrant Act were two and a half times as numerous. The most serious forms of crime do not appear in the table at all, as it is confined to convictions before magistrates. But in attempting to estimate the comparative morality of two periods it is surely of some importance to have regard to murders and felonies as well as to the petty cases dealt with in the courts of first instance. Of the offences tabulated assaults may be taken as the most grave, and they have not increased in anything like the ratio of the population.

The fact is that, to a great extent, Mr. Hoyle compares things essentially unlike. The classification of minor offences has been very greatly changed during the last quarter of a century. A great variety of new powers have been conferred upon the police, many new offences have been defined, and much greater vigilance is now exercised in every direction. We cannot, therefore, accept Mr. Hoyle's discouraging conclusion that crime has increased one hundred per cent. while the population has grown by about three-and-twenty. Indeed, he proves too much even for his own purposes. For the drink bill has increased only fifty per cent., and if crime has increased at double that rate, we are driven to look for some other cause equally potent. During the last 25 years, says Mr. Hoyle, "75,000 children have "been torn from their homes and consigned to reformatories or industrial schools." These are hardly the terms we should ourselves choose to describe an operation carried out at a great expense to the public and fraught with blessings to the children. Mr. Hoyle, however, has a right, if he pleases, to regret the removal of children from miserable and vicious homes. But it is distinctly a mistake to add that of these 75,000 children 30,000 were sent during the last seven years, as if that were due to increase of drunkenness. In the first place, the drink bill has decreased by twenty-one millions in those years; and, in the second, the reformatory and industrial school system has been very largely extended. It is a little hard to have our efforts to grapple with evil quoted as a proof that evil is increasing. Mr. Hoyle is so impressed by the vast mischief done by drink that he gives scarcely sufficient weight to other sources of misery and crime, besides being tempted to overlook the efforts that are being made in other directions for the improvement of society. It is right that the magnitude of the drink bill should be kept before us and every effort made to reduce it. But the theory that it ought to be or can be abolished altogether is not, perhaps, the one upon which practical effort can be framed. Man has craved for stimulants in one form or another ever since the Flood, and we rather fancy that he will go on using them to all coming time. They have outlived a good many changes of opinion, and they will, in all probability, hold their own against a great many more. It seems more hopeful to regulate a perennial human demand than to attempt its forcible suppression. Probably one of the greatest blessings that could be conferred upon society in its present imperfect condition would be a very stringent protection against bad and adulterated liquor. The crimes ascribed to drink are frequently due to the badness of the drink. The fluids retailed to the poor are in too many cases concoctions which madden the brain and ruin the digestion even when taken in quantities which would be perfectly harmless were the liquor genuine.

RACING STUD AUCTION.

Papers to hand give us full particulars of the great sale of Lord Falmouth's renowned racing stud at Tattersall's, held on the 24th ult. We call Mr. A. Bullrich's attention to the figures below, to shew what prices are paid in England for 2 year old colts and fillies. All remember the great Santa Rita auction, when the stud of the late Mr. Casares was brought to the hammer; the prices then paid astonished the market, but a glance at the figures appended show that the Santa Rita sale was an auction "en miniature." Through the kindness of Mr. C. T. Getting we are enabled to give the following figures of the great sale in guineas and Buenos Aires paper dollars:—

	Guineas	$m/c
Grandmaster	550	73,000
Prince Maurice	500	64,000

Average price—151$\frac{3}{4}$ guineas, or 191,310 $m/c.—Twenty-four animals.

In reference to the sale the London papers state that a numerous and influential company attended the sale, and even higher prices than were anticipated were realised for Busybody and Harvester—both fetched over one million dollars each. The first offer for Harvester was 4,000 guineas, then followed thirty bids, and the colt was knocked down to Sir J. Willoughby. Busybody was bought by Mr. T. Cannon for 8,800 guineas. When such prices are paid for racing horses, one may smile at the efforts of those who endeavor to secure a market in the Plate for first-class imported bloodstock.

ROSARIO AND CAMPANA RAILWAY.

With much pleasure we give the following able article, from Herapath's Railway and Commercial Journal, on this new enterprize:—

Let us, then, for a moment glance at the position this new Argentine railway will occupy on the face of the map. It is a trunk line, without branches, running straight from Buenos Aires, the capital of the country, a city of 300,000 inhabitants, to Rosario, also an important rising place, traversing a rich and populous district, having on its route of 186 miles no less than 20 stations, not including the two terminal ones of Buenos Aires and Rosario, and uniting the Central Argentine railway with the B. Aires Great Southern, also the Western, with other railways terminating in the capital. The Central Argentine line, by means of the Government extensions, is fast becoming one of the most important lines within the Republic, and the new line may be said to complete its route, by carrying it on to Buenos Aires, and there uniting with the great lines of the Buenos Aires Great Southern and the Western railway, the latter being a line that is only second in importance to the Buenos Aires Great Southern itself. Indeed, the new line becomes a link in the great chain of nearly 3000 miles of railway. The through traffic alone of such a line ought to be important. Added to the local traffic a gross revenue should arise that would satisfy the most sanguine temperament.

It should not be forgotton that railway property generally in the Argentine country is prosperous, which arises principally from low capital cost, and the possession of a fair amount of traffic; also from the absence of wasting competition. Both the Buenos Aires Great Southern and the Central Argentine are splendid properties. No one will dispute that. But what was their traffic last year, 1883? The one had £1,804 per mile, and the other £1,703. Neither of these traffics is very large. We think nothing of double and trobie that amount in this country, and yet very few of our lines pay better than the B. Aires Great Southern; very few, indeed, pay as well. The Argentine country is favourable for railway construction, and the prosperous lines have been made with economy; that is, not only cheaply, but well, for the 'cheap and nasty' principle as applied to railways is not economy. If capital had been uselessly lavished in and about the Buenos Aires Great Southern it would not have yielded a high dividend.

The new line is really an extension of one already made, and fills up a glaring gap. The made line runs from Buenos Aires to Campana, 50 miles, and cost, in capital represented by shares and debentures, £900,000. Its extension from Campana to Rosario, 136 miles, is to cost only about as much, namely, £933,000, of which £600,000 is in 7 per cent. preference shares, just issued, and £333,000 in 5 per cent debentures. We must bear in mind that Buenos Aires Great Southern Directors are Directors of the new line, the prospectus for which says—"Estimates have been received showing that the extension works can be completed and equipped for a sum within the capital and borrowing powers of the Company. They will be commenced simultaneously at several points, and as the country is admirably adapted for their rapid construction it is expected that the whole will be completed and opened for traffic in the ensuing year. The construction will be carried out by the Company upon the system adopted so successfully by the Buenos Aires Great Southern Railway, and arrangements have already been made for the supply of the principal materials upon favourable terms."

This is a most advantageous time for railway construction, steel rails being so cheap, and freights so low.

The Buenos Aires Great Southern have achieved in their extensions already constructed, and which have yielded dividend, quite a brilliant success, by dint of setting to work and themselves constructing the new lines, instead of employing contractors or others to do it. By this means they brought down the average cost of their lines greatly, and immensely raised the dividend powers of the property. Low capital cost is the best guarantee of success. It must add to the confidence felt in the profitable results of the B. Aires and Rosario line that a similar method is to be adopted in dealing with its construction. The Buenos Aires Great Southern succeeded not only in making their new lines at a low cost but within the estimates.

The capital of the opened section from Buenos Aires to Campana, 50 miles, being £900,000 and that of the new line from Campana to Rosario, 136 miles, £933,000, there is a great difference in the mileage cost of the two sections favourable to the new. In fact the cost of the latter is so low that the average capital outlay of the whole line, 186 miles, is but £10,000 per mile, ou which it is easy to make a good dividend from a small traffic. The prospectus points out that at £1,275 per mile per annum, which is the traffic on the opened section, there will be, with 50 per cent. for working expenses, enough profit to pay the debenture interest, the full 7 per cent. preference dividend on the new issue of capital, and leave a surplus of some £40,000, which would pay more than 7 per cent. on the ordinary stock of £500,000. The ordinary stock would get about 8 per cent., indicating that the option on the part of the 7 per cent. preference to convert into ordinary shares within 5 years of the opening of the entire line is likely to be a valuable privilege, especially if the traffic reaches a figure equal per mile to that of either the Buenos Aires Great Southern or the Central Argentine, in which case the shares of the new line just placed may rival the stock of the Buenos Aires Great Southern in actual value, high as that is. Everyone will judge for himself what the traffic of the Buenos Aires and Rosario line may be, but it is surely likely to exceed that at present carried on the section opened for local purposes, since not only does the new penetrate a district rich in its own resources, but a through business is to be added by that extension which is calculated to be very large. Is it not evidant that from all sources of revenue this new line in the flourishing republic stands on a basiss which promises handsome results?

Seven per cent. may seem a high rate of interest for the preference shares, but with the debenture interest it forms but a small fixed charge upon the 186 miles of railway. The debenture interest is £36,650 per annum, and the 7 per cent. preference dividend £42,000 per annum, making the fixed charge £78,650 per annum, which is little more than £400 per mile per annum.

The whole of the capital, including the £500,000 of share capital, is £1,833,000, made up as follows:—

Five per cent. debenture stock	£733,000
Seven per cent preference shares (just allotted)	600,000
Ordinary stock	500,000
	£1,833,000

As the line is 186 miles long, this averages nearly £10,000 per mile average capital cost, which is very moderate for a well-made and well-equipped line. As we have seen, even the present local traffic on the 50 miles opened will at 50 per cent. for working expenses suffice to pay the debenture interest, the preference dividend, and leave a sum within a small fraction equal to 8 per cent. per annum on the common shares. But the probability is that on completion, the line being an important trunk, connecting two of the most flourishing railway systems in the country—which it may be said to complete—and passing through a rich and well-populated district, there will be such a flow of traffic that the 7 per cents. will eventually avail themselves of their right of conversion into ordinary stock.

If, in order to note the capital cost of the line from a Preference Shareholders' point of view, we deduct the amount of the ordinary capital from the total, we find a capital of £1,333,000. This spread over 186 miles averages very little more than £7,000 per mile. The 5 per cent. debentures being larger in amount than the 7 per cent. preference shares, the average charge arising from the £7,000 per mile capital is under 6 per cent. Therefore this again shows the small traffic effort that is required to meet and exceed the fixed demands of the preference holders.

THE Nord America's Mails.

London, May 7th.

The Orontes has arrived at Suakim with 300 of the Royal Marine Light Infantry and 17 officers on board, under the command of Lieutenant-Col. Ozzard. She will leave again on Thursday, probably taking back the King's Royal Rifle Corps.

Major Chemside was appointed Governor to-day. He is a great favourite with the natives.

An evidently inspired article in the Temps expresses the opinion that just as France began in Tunis by settling the Tunisian debt, so Mr. Gladstone, after making Egyptian solvent, will enter more resolutely on the path of Egyptian reorganization. He will no longer have the same repugnance to a virtual Protectorate, and the army, magistracy and civil service will be more openly placed in English hands. There will still, however, be the same protest of the temporary character of British intervention, and the same talk—with perfect sincerity on Mr. Gladstone's part—of the happy moment when Egypt can be left to govern herself. Perhaps five or ten years will even be fixed as the period of the occupation, but meanwhile Egypt will really be a British dependency.

The Temps thinks that Mr. Gladstone's proposals imply the guarantee of the Egyptian debt, without which the bondholders will never agree to the sacrifice asked of them, and that he must see the ungraciousness of expecting France to facilitate the state of things based on her unjust exclusion. Yet it acknowledges the difficulty which England would experience in retracing her steps.

The Political Correspondence states that, in spite of the uneasiness with which the Conference inspires her, Turkey will ultimately appear at the council table, in order to avoid isolating herself from France and the other Powers. The Porte is silent, because it does not as yet know the views of the Sultan, and will probably delay its reply to the Powers as long as possible.

A convention of Irish and Irish-American delegates, will, I am informed, assemble in Paris at an early date, under the presidency of Mr. James Stephens, for the consideration of the Irish political question, with the object of devising ways and means to put a stop to further dynamite and Invincible operations. It appears that there are several leading Irishmen in the United States who consider that Parnellism is fast becoming effete, but who conscientiously cannot support the general destruction of life and property now being, or about to be carried on under the auspices of Ford and O'Donovan Rosas. The advocates of the new departure are seeking a medium between extreme and immoral violence on the one hand, and constitutional action on the other.

Within the last few days a detailed and positive statement has been making the round of the German Press, which I at first disregarded as incredible, but which has now received an appearance, at least of truth, through its reproduction in the North German Gazette—a journal which generally seeks to verify before quoting the assertion of its contemporaries. The statement is to the effect that on the wedding of his daughter, Princess Victoria, to Prince Louis of Battenberg, the Grand Duke of Hesse privately contracted a morganic marriage with a lady named Madame Kolemine, the daughter of Count Adam von Hutton Czapski, a Russian courtier. Madame von Kolemine, it is added, lately procured a divorce from her husband, to whom she was married in 1873.

We have received the following telegram's through Reuter's Agency:—

Suakim, May 6.

Since the departure of the British troops everything has remained quiet in the neighbourhood of this place. The number of friendly tribes is daily increasing.

Cairo, May 6.

In addition to the escort of Bedouins along the banks of the Nile, Colonel Stuart Wortley and Majors Rundle and Kitchener will also be accompanied by Gawazi Bedouins.

The Bedouins will form a cordon between Assouan and Dongola, with their head-quarters in the oasis of Kharga, whence patrols will be frequently despatched in order to prevent emissaries of the Madhi from passing through.

Telegraphic communication is still interrupted with Berber. Dongola is quiet.

Captain Humphreys was fatally injured this morning by a horse which he was training for the races, to be held here. The animal grew restive, reared up, and rolled over upon its rider.

Alexandria, May 6.

The statement of accounts of the Domains Administration is nearly ready. The deficit of revenue against expenditure is estimated at £E150,000, against £E250,000 in the preceding year.

The Marine National Bank of New York has closed its doors. The event was quite unexpected. The Bank was a debtor to the Clearing House for a sum of 500,000 dols., but paid the amount before closing its doors.

The Egyptian Government has demanded that it may be officially represented at the Conference, even if only with a consultative voice. The British Government has not yet replied on the subject. Should the request of the Egyptian Government be granted, Nubar Pysha will be delegated by the Khedive to attend the sitting of the Conference. This will not interfere with the mission of Blum Pasha, who has been summoned to London to furnish explanations concerning Egyptian finance previous to the meeting of the Conference.

Rome, May 6,

The Diritto to-day publishes an article on the present Conference on the financial affairs of Egypt, in which it says:—

"Italy is preparing herself to take part in the Conference, with the intention of conciliating the interests of England and France, at the same time having due regard to her own. The prompt acceptance of the British proposal by Italy, will ensure for her the sympathies of the British Government, with whom we sincerely desire to maintain perfect accord. Italy has no reason to doubt the loyal intentions of the British Cabinet, or that it is opposed to all ideas of annexation in Egyqt.

AN IMPECUNIOUS PRINCESS.

Some of the letters written by the Princess Alice to the Queen will astonish those people who labour under the illusion that Royal personages are not troubled by the sordid cares of ordinary life. The Princess seems to have been in a painful state of pecuniary embarrassment from the hour of her arrival at Darmstadt, and when one remembers that a dowry of £30,000 and an income of £6,000 a year were voted to her Royal Highness on her marriage, the revelations of the correspondence are certainly astonishing. The German Royalties do not maintain extravagant households, and the Prince and Princess ought to have been able to live in ease and comfort on such a sum, even supposing that the bridegroom contributed nothing towards the maintainance of the establishment.

The Princess, on first arriving at Darmstadt, complains that her house would be thought small and mean by plain middle-class people, while the dining-room is so stuffy and uncomfortable that they are unable to invite people to dinner. A year later, when the Princess is confined, the Queen sends money to pay the doctor, and provides the baby-linen and accompaniments. The Princess is invited to come to England on a visit, but replies that she cannot afford to do so. She cannot pay an adequate salary for a governess for her daughters, nor can she buy curtains for the drawing-room (which are much wanted,) unless the Queen will pay for them. The late Emperor of Russia, passing through Darmstadt on his way from Ems, comes to luncheon and the Princess (like the Primrose family) is beside herself with worries at the prospect of the expense of entertaining him. The Princess could not have suffered worse privation (for it was nothing less, considering the very different circumstances of her early life) if she had married a clerk with £150 a year. The Queen spent £20,000 on building a suitable house for the Princess and her husband, for the residence given to them by the Grand Duke of Hesse at their marriage was described at the time as "a doghole of a place."

These dismal revelations remind one of an incident which startled the company at a Royal marriage in this country some years ago, where also the bridegroom was a German Prince. Only members of the Royal Family were present at the ceremony, with afew of the chief officers of the Household. When the bridegroom came to repeat the words, "with all my goods I thee endow," an indignant exclamation was heard from the Royal circle, "Good God! the very shoes the fellow wears are not paid for!" It was the old Duke of Cambridge who had blurted out this awkward truth in one of his fits of abstraction.

AFTER RESULTS TO THE MAN WHO KISSED PATTI.

Gov. T. T. Crittenden, of Missouri, is now known as the famous Patti Kisser. He achieved some little reputation by having a notorious outlaw named Jesse James killed, and added something to it by making a friend of the brother, of the murdered bandit; but the greatest stroke of his diplomatic genius was achieved when he succeeded in kissing the $5,000 singer of her Majesty's Italian Opera Company, Mme. Adelina Patti. He kissed the diva in her boudoir at the Southern Hotel of St. Louis, and in presence of the wall-eyed and jealous Nicolini, who strange to relate, did not remove the stiletto he carried in his boot and plant it in the Governor's back. The latter would have been all right had not Mme. Patti herself given the osculatory coup d' etat away. It got into the newspapers and, of course, Mrs. Crittenden heard about it. When she did she put the handle of a broomstick to soak in a barrel of brnie, polished up the flat iron and sharpened out its corners, took a baseball bat from its satinlined case in the Excutive boudoir, and then waited patiently behind the door for her silver-haired hubby to come home. His private secretary having informed him that the Mansion was in a state of siege, he made his entrance quietly through the kitchen window, and was writing an address to the Democratic party in the garret when his better half, having learned he was in the house, pounced down upon him. The audience was brief, but gory.

Mrs. Crittenden said she was no singer, to be sure, but when the old man had any kissing to do there was field enough for him at home for such practices without having to chase down to St. Louis to slobber over the lips of a garlic-eating prima donna; if he did'nt want to kiss his own wife he ha'l no right to kiss anybody else; even if he had grazed upon the labial pastures of the servant girls at home there might be some excuse, but traveling all the way to St. Louis on her personal railroad pass and then unblushingly bussing an Italian singer and having his name in the papers for it was too much—entirely too much; she wouldn't, she couldn't stand it—and here her temper gave way and she gave the base ball bat, the flat-iron and the broom-handle a chance to figure in the discussion. Governor Crittenden promised in vain never to do it again. Every time he promised either the flat iron, the base-ball bat or the broom-handle left a diagram of the Patti kiss on his head. Here is one of them taken from life.

The Governor had the executive physician to draw the edges of the kiss together and seal them with sticking plaster. After Mrs. C. retired, warbling the "Return of the Victor," from "Aida," Governor Crittenden threw his address aside and began writing a book to be entitled: "What I Know About Kissing." It will be in press shortly.

This statement may not be exactly correct in all of its details, but all true wives will agree in saying that it ought to be.—St. Louis Critic.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

Thanks to the courtesy of a kind subscriber, we are able to give our readers to-day extracts from a Times of May 7th, received by the Nord America. Also particulars of the sale of Lord Falmouth's stud, the prices at which will open the eyes of those who think that equine blue-blood can be had for a sneeze.

We have received a letter criticising our Paris Correspondent's remarks on Freemasonry; and also another from our friend "Con Amore," in reference to the Swedish "Brandy King," Smith the First, icebergs, Spitzbergen, etc. Both must stand over—the latter, "it may be for years, and it may be for ever," as the public are but faintly interested in an exchange of amenities between "Con Amore" and Mr. "Grivesnes."

The Derby was run on Wednesday with the following result:

Harvester and St. Gatien (dead heat) 1st
Queen Adelaide 3rd

At the sale of Lord Falmouth's stud, referred to in another column, Harvester was sold for 8,600 guineas to Sir John Willoughby, Bart., the owner of Queen Adelaide. The odds at the start for the Blue Ribbon were: Harvester, 800 to 100; St. Gatien, 1000 to 15; Queen Adelaide, 1000 to 80. A telegram to the Jockey Club says that St. Gatien won, and Harvester and Lady Adelaide ran a dead heat for second place.

We would feel obliged if those who intend advertizing in the new edition of our Hand-book would let us know at once, in order not to delay the publication of the work.

We call on the New Gas Co. of Buenos Aires to put on pressure earlier in the evening. Our proof-readers and printers are half blind, owing to the monstrously dim gas light up to ½ past 5 p.m. They are not moles.

We are asked to make inquiries about Mr. Patrick George Russell, of Charleville, County Cork, Ireland, who came to this country in 1863; and to inform him, if he is still above ground, that an application to Mr. Henry Russell, of Gortsheagh, Newcastle West, County Limerick, will result greatly to his advantage.

Yesterday, at about a quarter past 12, a cart, more than overloaded with bags of flour, stuck fast in the mud in Calle Cuyo, between 25 de Mayo and Reconquista, opposite the Offices of the Pacific Railway Company. The poor, overworked horses were doing all they could to set the cart moving, but all in vain. The driver, then getting furious, began whipping his animals in such a shameful manner that the blood was running from the sides of one of them; and not contented with this, the ruffian began on the horses' heads with the handle of his whip. In the meantime, policeman No. 6 (who we specially recommend to Commissary Suffern) stood quietly looking on, without saying a word, till Mr. R. Z. called on him, from the balcony of his office, to do his duty, and then only he told the driver not to illtreat his cattle in that manner. The scene was witnessed by several gentlemen, who all showed their disgust, not only at the brutality of the driver, but also at the indifference of the policeman.

There was no row, contrary to expectations, at the meeting of the Municipality on Wednesday. There was some discussion, but no satisfactory explanation, as to the lists published of the fifty largest rate payers in each parish, on which lists, some of our colleagues declare, there are "attorantes," burst-up waiters, and all kinds of queer fishes, cheek by jowl with some of the first names in the land.

The National Deputies did not overwork themselves at Wednesday's sitting, which only lasted an hour and a half. The principal business done was in the way of granting and refusing pensions. Leave was given to the Misses Frederica and Elisa Reincke y Brown to go to Europe for two years.

Signor Mazzardi, the courteous secretary of Maddlo Theodorini, favoured us with a call yesterday, and gave us the pleasing news that the fair artist was much better, and hoped to be able to sing soon again. Signor M. speaks English perfectly, although he has never seen England, and we had a pleasant chat with him about operatic things in general,

We understand that the Rev. Charles Robertson, M.A., B.D., is expected out in the R.M.S. Tagus, to take the place of the Rev. J. W. Fleming in the Scotch Church during the absence of the latter in Mendoza, whither he is about to return for the benefit of his health.

We hear that the want of a successor to the defunct pontoon Vanguardia, in the Outer Roads, causes great inconvenience to merchant skippers. It ought to be easy to get a vessel suitable for the purpose. The matter has lain over quite too long.

The Lord Mayor is again "victorious, happy and glorious." His Lordship has given the "Consejo" a worse fall by his second Manifesto than by the first. Yet the organs of the "Consejo" declare that the members thereof have not the remotest intention of resigning.

It was feared there would be another row in the Colon Theatre last night, when Un Ballo en Maschera was given.

The papers announce that a well-known maker of wax matches here is about to turn to wine-making. From matches to Medoc is but a step, but rather a wide one.

There was a large British and British-Porteño audience at the opening entertainment of the Literary Society on Wednesday night. The frequent and hearty applause showed how admirably the tastes of the audience had been hit off in the programme, the execution of every item in which was excellent.

The last news received by Messrs. H. Hollmann & Co., who initiated the Exposition in Bremen of purely Argentine products, are most satisfactory and promise a great success.

Dear Sirs,

I have much pleasure in stating that I cured all my flocks this season with the "Golden Leaf Extract" and found the result highly satisfactory, and in future do not intend to use any other dip.

After first using the "Golden Leaf," I found it such a perfect cure for Scab that I recommended it to several of my neighbours who have all proved it equally good.

Yours truly

LANMAN & KEMP'S Pure Medicinal Cod-Liver Oil. In the diseases leading to consumption, there is no time for experimental trifling. They are swift and often fatal. The cough that is neglected to day may culminate a week hence in pneumonia, or bronchitis, or consumption. There is but one remedy in severe cases of pulmonary disease, whether chronic or of late date. It is—so say the whole medical faculty—the oil expressed from the Liver of the Godfish. But let the patient be sure that he or she has the true remedy. Let that remedy be Lanman & Kemp's Pure Medicinal Cod-Liver oil, and the invalid will have the best possible preparation of the reliable pulmonic known. Lanman & Kemp employ competent agents who reside at the fisheries, and who select for use the sound livers of the finest fish taken on the Banks of Newfoundland. From these the oil is expressed while they are perfectly fresh, and when the process is finished it is transparent as amber crystal. It is the best modern specific in its most efficient state, and has no equal in coughs, colds, asthma, sore throat, inflamation of the lungs or bronchia, debility, emaciation, and all the maladies terminating in consuption and confirmed liver complaint.

For the end of the month at the same rates as for cash. Operations for the end of June embraced 10,000 at 85⅝.
Bank scrip ruled active; over five hundred were sold for the end of the month at 61. The feeling in the scrip is no longer so firm and there are sellers at 61. Several parties have let go of late.
The money market continues easy at current rates. The two leading banks discounted half-a-million yesterday. The exchange market continues very dull; bills scarce and nothing doing. Government bills are in demand at 7 o/o.
A telegram received from London to-day announces that the Board of the London and River Plate Bank have declared a dividend of 4 o/o for the six months ended 31st. March last.
The telegraph service between this city and Rosario leaves room for much complaint, and we call attention of the Post Master General to the great delays in the delivery of telegrams in this city. One party forwarded a telegram from Rosario on the 26th inst. to this city, requesting an urgent answer. The telegram was delivered here on "Wednesday at 1 p.m." The party in question, meantime, receiving no answer was obliged to come down to this city to arrange the business personally. This may be an exceptional case, but the Post-Master should see into the matter and give strict orders and adopt severe measures to hasten the delivery of telegrams.
Captain Sibthorp, commander of the Castle Forward, was welcomed on 'Change to-day. His steamer is one of the largest that enter the Plate; she brought four thousand tons of merchandize for this market, but owing to want of lighters her cargo has not been completely discharged. She has a full cargo engaged between this and Montevideo.
The following were the sales at the ring during official hours:—

Cedulas—
For cash F 56,000 at 85½-¼
For May 30th F 2,000 at 85½
For May 31st F 50,000 at 85½-¼
For June 30th F 10,000 at 85⅝
Sales, 138,000
National Bank Shares—
For May 31st 2,850 at 152-¼-153-152½-153 to 152½-¼-½
For June 30th 1,500 at 152¼-153-154-153½ to 154-153½-154-153½-154
Sales, 4,350
National Bank Certificates, 30 o/o paid—
For May 31st 519 at $61

Lighters are so scarce in port that steamer agents have ordered the construction of steam launches for the services of their company. A well-known company has bought up a lot of small steamers and lighters on the continent, in order to avoid the expensive delays in loading and unloading at present in the outer roads. This is another sign of the times and shews how the trade of the Plate is advancing.
All the Italian brokers left the hall to attend Dr Pastore's funeral, which the great physician was held may be ganged by the immense crowd that accompanied the remains to the cemetery. Three thousand people were gathered to pay the last tribute to the deceased, and we may say that this funeral was quite as great an event as that of the late Dr J. C. Gomez.
Exchange on Montevideo ruled weaker to-day; new drawers have appeared in the market, and several operations were reported to-day at 2½. Telegrams from Rio announce a further fall in the rate of exchange on London; the quotation is now 19⅞. Things in Rio do not appear to be on the mend.
Mr J. Reay, representing the Castle Line of which Messrs Thomlinson, Thomson & Co. are managing owners, was welcomed to-day on 'Change. This is Mr Reay's first visit to the Plate.
The fog in the river this morning reminded one of Dublin. All the vessels in the Outer Roads had their bells ringing. Nothing could be seen at 100 yards distance.
Captain Gray of the Castle Ellen was welcomed to-day on 'Change. His steamer brought out 66 emigrants who praise the accommodation on board and have written a letter to the captain thanking him and his officers for their kindness and attention.
The share market rose during afternoon. The liquidation parlor was thronged, and speculations were considerable. Several thousand shares were sold for Saturday; the market opened with a buoyant feeling at 152½, went up rapidly to 153; rates gradually advanced until the market was topped by a sale of 100 shares at 154; a weakness then began to be felt and the stock dropped back to 153, but closed hard at 153½. Nothing reported in scrip. Cedulas were dull and showed no change.
Advices from the Mount state that speculation in stocks continues very dull. It appears that the Unifieds sold in London for Montevidean account at 58 only left 55¼ clear, after payment of brokerage, freight, insurance etc. Late advices from London do not report any improvement in the Unified stock. The Deuda Amortizable looks a little better, but Treasury Bills ruled weaker yesterday. A large business in lands of the Progreso Oriental is rumored.
The freight market continues weak. The depression in shipping trade is universal, and the crisis in freights here is no anomally. Agents complain much of the scarcity of lighters and delays in loading and unloading.
The National gunboat Villarino crossed the Rio Negro bar to-day, en route for Buenos Aires. Commander Spurr telegraphs that he brings a score of Indian captives for this city. The Villarino has been five months away, cruising in the far South.
Mr. R. Laval will leave in the Pomona for the Bay of San Blas with funds to pay the crew of the man-of-war Constitucion, provisions and coal. The Paymaster of the Rio Negro flotilla will also leave with funds for the crews of the Nauquen, Triumfo and Rio Negro, anchored at Patagones.
Brokers state that thousands of shares were passed to-day at the usual rate. It is rumoured that the private banks have lent large amounts at 8 o/o, and shares valued at 110. This shows that the borrowers fall back on plenty of "cover," the great desideratum in these speculative transactions. The amounts taken up are stated to be very large.

A Derangement of the Liver.

THE CAUSE OF DISEASE IN THE STOMACH, KIDNEYS, AND Nervous System.

Below will be found a brief summary of a Lecture upon the Liver, delivered before the Eclectic College of Medecine, by

Dr. J. Haydock

The Liver has been known as the great blood-maker and blood-purifier of the circulation. From its size and spongy structure, it plays a most important part in the animal economy, as regards assimilation and nutrition. Food taken in the mouth and acted upon by the digestive organs of the stomach is converted into Glucose and Peptone, and in these forms enters the Portal vein. Here, by the action of the liver, these substances are converted into a form of sugar and pass out of the liver by a large vein, called the Hepatic vain, into the great circulation. The new material now formed serves two purposes: viz: the maintenance of heat in the body and assisting in the cell growth of the system.

Dr. Murchison says "The composition of bile and its secretion is very complex. It is constantly being secreted by the liver, and, increasing suddenly before eating, gradually decreases as soon as the appetite is satisfied and feeding ceases." Now, if this most important organ of the body becomes torpid, or the passage of bile interfered with, emaciation and disease ensue. I note eight marked peculiarities that now occur, and which we all know off:—

1. The patient complains of a feeling of weight and fullness of the stomach.
2. Distension of the bowels by wind.
3. Heartburn.
4. A feelingof weariness, pains in the limbs and great sleepiness after meals.
5. A bad taste in the mouth, especially in the morning, and furred tongue.
6. Constipation, with an occasional attack of diarrhœa.
7. Headache in front of head.
8. Depression of spirits and great melancholy, with lassitude and a disposition to leave everything for to-

EDITOR'S TABLE

The British Hospital got a donation of 200 Nats. from President Roca on the 25th. The Committee of the Hospital, in a note to the Minister of the Interior, have duly expressed their thanks to the Chief Magistrate of the nation for his generous offering.

At the fireworks in Rosario on the 25th the usual accidents occurred. A "masher" had an eye put out by a rocket stick while he was explaining his ways and means to his intended mother-in-law. Two more of his tribe had their skulls s-mashed by being thrown from their horses; but the doctors declared that concussion of the brain was out of the question, as there was nothing of the kind to be concussed.

The thief fraternity in Nueve de Julio are only half civilized. On Wednesday morning one of them stole 4000 Nats from Mr. Albert Lartigau, and not content with this superb haul, absolutely walked off with the pair of pantaloons in a pocket of which the cash was. A mean thief!

More fat has been thrown into the fire in the Consejo Deliberante by the fact that the employées' salaries are overdue, owing to the "planillas" not having been sent to the Lord Mayor by the Council. It is full time for the latter to abandon its untenable position. Things cannot go on much longer as they now stand.

Mr. Frank Brown, the inimitable Clown at the Politeama, will be presented on his benefit night with a costly solid gold medal, set in 36 diamonds. He well deserves it. The medal is on view at Burgos's, in Calle Florida.

The Deputies, in their Wednesday sitting, offered a project of railway to run from Rosario to Santiago del Estero. Messrs. Fernandez & Boraes' proposal for the construction of this same railway was thrown out.

An Italian named Francis the Evangelist gave his daughter such an awful beating, spurred on by his second wife, the girl's step-mother, that he left her insensible. He has been taken to the Policia, and if the Comisario only thinks as we do, the Penitentiary is too good for him.

There was a fairly large house to see the Ballo en Maschera on Wednesday night in the Politeama. It is one of the best pantomimes they have given yet. Frank Brown was just in the vein and made all laugh, 'nolentes volentes'.

The bull from Rome recognizing Father Tissera as Bishop of Cordoba has arrived, and the ceremony of consecration, with the President as sponsor and the Archbishop officiating, will take place shortly. Directly after the installation Father Tissera will proceed to Cordoba and relieve Vicar Ciara of his onerous duties.

A luckless peon working on the extension of the Central and Northern Railway got lost in a wood and, being taken with a fever for eight days, remained there without food or shelter. At last, after the eight days, some of his fellow workmen came across him by accident; he was wholly insensible and he was promptly assisted and put in the doctors' hands. The latter have already deprived him of one of his feet, and may have to do likewise with the other.

It is calculated that there now residing in the United States a thousand Japanese, and of this number it is said that not one has ever been convicted of any criminal offence in an American court.

Only Eighteen veterans of the rank and file of the Army of Independence now survive. Of these five are sergeants, two corporals, and the rest privates. President Roca sent each of them a present of 100 nats, on the 25th. In the evening the glorious old "vielles moustaches" drank H. E's health with three times three, "shouldered their crutches, and showed how fields were won," with Brown Bess and the bayonet, before "arms of precision" were thought of.

SOUTH AMERICAN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Bs. Aires, 26th May 1884

To the Editors of the Standard.

Gentlemen,

My attention has been called to a late number of the South American Missionary Magazine in which, among other subjects for special prayer by the members of the S.A. Missionary Society, are the following:—

"I. That God may sanctify to our Society and its individual members the deep trial it has sustained by the deaths of the Rev. F.N. Lett and the Rev. A. W. Lockyer.

II. That He who has revealed Himself to us as "the Father of the fatherless and the God of the widow," may graciously vouchsafe to the two widows and their families His Divine consolations, and fill their hearts with bright hope and "peace in believing."

III. That God may be pleased to raise up two good, faithful, and suitable men to fill the vacant posts, and also two more to take up work on the West Coast of South America."

Nothing, of course, could be more pious and edifying than the above intentions, were it not that the widows and orphans aforesaid remain in a cold and practical world, during their continuance in which more tangible blessings even than those invoked by the Society (I speak with all reverence) are requisite to decent subsistence.

Would you allow me to suggest that the S.A.M.S. would do much to strengthen belief in its pious intentions by adding, even at this eleventh hour, a IV. clause, couched in terms, more or less to the following effect:—

"IV. That it may please God to move the Society to make suitable provision for the widows and orphans of those who have fallen in their service."

This, Messrs. Editors, would be an act of justice which the Society might well afford to perform; and if it were merely done through a spirit of charity without reference to justice, we are told in last Sunday's Epistle that "Charity covereth a multitude of sins."

Thanking you in advance for your valuable space, I am

Gentlemen,

Yours very truly,

Macedonian.
